Of course, if it's a case like this semi-detached London home from the early 1900s, you go back to the drawing board. By 2011, this house had been changed beyond recognition, with two wide-ranging farms operating as a garden. Remember that many edibles have their own beauty, such as the ripe lushness of tomatoes or the bright yellow sunflowers. And good design is its own kind of beauty, as evidenced by the lovely geometry of this vegetable garden.
